

WHAT'S BEAUTIFUL TO YOU . . .

may, or may not be the same things that are beautiful to someone else. Life's a matter of perception — yours, and countless others. Linda Alexander's photography style nearly identically mirrors her writing style — everything visual has a story to tell. If she can see it through her camera lens, she can relate its story. If she can then portray that story to you in a way that it causes an emotional response, you understand that story.

And that's what Linda tries to do with each photo she takes — tell its story so that someone else gets the message. She hopes to share her idea of beauty with you. If any of her photos evoke a response in you, please contact her to see more. There are sooo many more.

Linda Alexander is also an author. Check out her books, poetry, and articles at:

Linda
Alexander:
Photography

Life's a beach . . . and then you go surfing forever. Might as well appreciate a lot of incredible sights along the way.
